School Aged Neurodevelopmental Service up to 18

The school-Age Neurodevelopmental Team work closely with the Rise colleagues, including Core Specialist Mental Health. They provide assessments for a diagnosis of autism and/or attention deficit conditions or developmental coordination disorder as an additional diagnosis. The team includes speech and language therapists, occupational therapists and psychologists, they also have strong links with paediatricians and psychiatrists.

Most children and young people may not see all of the professionals, but the team may seek advice from their colleagues to help give the best advice. The team members have a high level of training, expertise, and experience in autism and ADHD, and they try to help children, young people, and their parents understand and learn how to support their child.

Coventry Neurodevelopmental Preschool Service

Assessment always includes information from different professionals. The professionals involved will depend on your child's needs, but support is always led by one person. Your child's assessment will include:

- A medical check
- A detailed developmental history
- Information about their behaviour, interactions, skills, and development in all environments including home and nursery.
- Observations of their play and interactions (this could be via a virtual platform or face-to-face)

Further assessment maybe required which could be:

- Autism Diagnostic Observation Schedule - an assessment tool carried out in a clinic setting

Referrals and Assessment

Referrals can be made by any professional working with a child when supported by signed consent from the parent. Information will be requested regarding any services your child is currently accessing. If you are concerned your child might have autism, then speak to your child's Health Visitor.
